Mercedes ML 350 (2017)

There's much to like about the M-class—the first-rate cabin, modern tech, and towing ability—but those seeking something sporty should keep looking. The base setup is a 302-hp 3.5-liter V-6 with rear-wheel drive for the Sunbelt set; 4MATIC all-wheel drive is optional.

Other engines include a 200-hp 2.1-liter turbo-diesel four and a 329-hp, twin-turbo 3.0-liter V-6, both with 4MATIC. Don't expect the M-class to be handy off-road, but it can tackle nasty weather with its 4MATIC all-wheel drive.

Mitsubishi Pajero GXi (2020)

Known as the Montero Sport or Shogun Sport in some markets, the Mitsubishi Pajero Sport in its third iteration has been around since August 2015, so the timing seems just about right for a mid-cycle refresh.

Stepping inside the cabin, Mitsu has installed an 8-inch digital instrument cluster and an updated touchscreen of the same size for the infotainment system. The Pajero Sport feels a bit more upscale than before thanks to more soft-padded surfaces throughout the interior, while rear passengers now have access to their own AC power outlet next to the USB port. A power tailgate with hands-free feature is also available, as is the possibility to access some of the SUV's controls and info through a smartphone.

Toyota Hilux Pilot

This model of the Toyota Hilux is bolder-looking and more powerful than any before it.

With a redesigned front end that's more angular and striking than that of the previous Hilux, the Hilux Pilot model has a 2.8-liter diesel engine, making it capable of completing the 0-62 mph sprint in 10.0 seconds.

The frontal design has also been completely reworked to incorporate a powerful, three-dimensional treatment across the grille and bumper. This modification improves the vehicle's road presence and reinforces its tough, go-anywhere credentials.
